It was the idea that spurred the world-building phenomenon in Mojang's Amazing Minecraft. Since the launch of the App Store, the constant delivery of important updates keeps this world of cubes fun, fresh and full of exciting features. First of all, I would like to say that Mojang has done a very good job keeping up with updates and bug fixes. And I really appreciate him for that. The new savage update is gorgeous, and I'm obsessed with the new monsters and terrain that come with it. However, as with most updates, there are always a lot of bugs, and as a user, I think this is the best place to let someone know of the ones I've seen so far, here! -If first of all it takes a long time to load a word (new or already existing) to generate a world except when you enter a world it takes a while to load an environment and you have to be patient while playing and wait the land in front of you to charge. When pressing the keyboard to type, the game will lag a bit. When you enter an order, a global delay will also be caused, then it will take some time for the order to be fulfilled. (I'm afraid the game crashes sometimes lol). But so far that's all I've seen, so with a little patience it's not too much of a problem. I know there are bugs with every update, and I know Mojang really tries, it's best to fix them ASAP, so I'm not afraid. Thank you Mojang and the developers for your hard work and consistency! I love Minecraft and always look forward to the exciting new features to come.
